UPCOMING SERVICES

Two Service Times on Sundays: 9:30 AM or 11:30 AM

Social hour is between the two services; either stay after the first service, or come early to the second one.

Religious education classes for children (K-5th grades) are offered during the 9:30 AM service, and classes for youth (6th-12th grades) are offered at 10:30 AM. Nursery care is available for both services.

NOVEMBER THEME: MEMORY

In autumn we begin to turn inward and memory looms. It is a season of holidays, which are all about remembering. What do we choose to remember? What to forget? How does that shape our lives? This month we will consider memory - what it is and how to use it consciously and wisely.

FALL BACK! Set your clocks back one hour before you go to bed Saturday night, then sleep in and come enjoy this service:

Nov. 4 Circles of Remembering with Lindsay Dunkel, Rev. Kevin Tarsa and all

To facilitate sharing, we would like to balance attendance at the two services this day. We encourage some of our usual 9:30 attendees to attend the 11:30 service if possible.

We enter our November theme of "memory" by sharing and witnessing memories of childhood, whether long ago, more recent, or current. As you are willing, be prepared to share - in one minute or less - a significant memory that helps illustrate what childhood was like when you were young, an early childhood memory that stays with you, that perhaps shaped you, and that is safe enough to surface and to share in the circle of our gathered community.

We also invite you to bring a small object from your childhood - or an object that represents your memories of childhood - to place on our shared altar during the service.

Nov. 11 Lest We Forget
Rev. Kevin Tarsa

What we remember and choose to call our history tells us less about what happened than about how we see and understand ourselves now, observed William Irwin Thompson. On this 100th anniversary of the end of World War I, let us commit to examine our memories - personal, communal and national - with humility, honesty, and our highest aspirations in mind and heart.

Nov. 18 Remembering Heroes
Members of UUCM with Jeff Stone

Congregants will share memories of heroes. Not a person with super powers, but an ordinary person who inspired you by doing something extraordinary, like pulling a frightened child out of a burning building, writing a book, giving a speech, creating a movement, making a discovery, etc. It can be a personal acquaintance, someone famous, or in between. We hold heroes in our memory as beacons to guide our lives by example. Willing to tell us about a hero who has been a guidepost for you in your life? Contact Jeff at 831-566-8377 or jeffstone@mac.com.

Nov. 25 Memories of Thanksgiving:
What were we grateful for?
Rev. Kevin Tarsa, et al

The celebration of Thanksgiving in the United States comes attached to a particular and, for many, problematic story and national memory. However, the explicit connection to that history is tenuous at many Thanksgiving dinner tables. We invite you to ask yourself what Thanksgiving really means to you. What were you and are you grateful for on Thanksgiving?

Rev. Kevin Tarsa
UUCM Minister

From the Minister

What does it mean to be a people of memory?

My first response was to ask, are we naught else? Are we not the sum total of all that we have retained from our past - physically, emotionally, spiritually, religiously, culturally? However, in the context of this month's theme, the question is more about exploring whether and how we realize that particular truth, and about exploring what an open-eyed humility toward our memory might offer us.

This month contains the 100th anniversary of the end of World War I, the tradition of Thanksgiving, and the annual Transgender Day of Remembrance. Foods, fragrances and autumn colors and skies will tap into many kinds of memories and remembering. Knowing that memories are not static, but rather shaped and re-shaped in the processes of calling them forth and bringing them to our active awareness, let us listen for what our remembering tells us about us now. Let us notice how those memories guide our movement forward and let us consider doing some conscious reshaping.

In October I had a chance to attend a unique production of the musical, "Oklahoma!" by Rogers and Hammerstein. I remember reclining on a carpet in front of an old black and white TV set in my Grandmother's living room to watch Oklahoma! when I was young. My parents owned the record album and we sang along with it again and again.

This recent production in Ashland, at the Oregon Shakespeare Festival, gave the show a new twist, featuring same-sex lead couples, a transgender matriarch, a multi-racial cast, and "LGBTQ2+ casting that affirms the identity spectrum." It was a powerful recasting of that World War II American classic. Familiar songs took on powerful new meanings. The sexism, misogyny, white supremacy, racism and colonialism of familiar scenes and phrases leapt suddenly off the stage. Commentary about openness and acceptance rang out, often most strongly in the understated offering of familiar lines from new kinds of mouths.

It was an artful, funny, moving, and sometimes disturbing oasis in the political/emotional storms that swirl around us, especially in the midst of chilling political efforts to remove support and protection for transgender persons. ("First they came for the ...") The very nature of this production of Oklahoma! lifted up UU values and commitments, placing them in strong contrast to the values being modeled and promoted by U.S. leadership. Just as the original Broadway production spoke to the people and times of 1943, offering both escape and a reinforcing of American ways, this new re-telling spoke to our current

And then we have the midterm elections. Yes, I buried the lead.

The stakes seem incredibly high and the possibilities unpredictable. Which sets of values will be affirmed? Here, too, let us look to memory and history, whether to be reminded of continuing, grounding truths, or to be inspired to present familiar stories in new and truth-surfacing ways.

No matter how the elections results land, we will continue to be called to our wisest and most courageous insight and action. Let us be prepared to be present to one another on election night and the day and days after, no matter the various outcomes. As our UUA President Susan Frederick-Gray reminds us, "this is no time for a casual faith." No matter what happens.

Board of Trustees

Taylor Carey,
President,
UUCM Board of Trustees

Somewhere between "Then" and "Now" we stumbled "Through the Looking Glass" into a world of nonsense. Things we once valued as a nation we now dismiss out of hand. Principles we clung to like barnacles to boat hulls now barely generate a glance.

It seems that just yesterday regard for the truth and the rights of free speech and of the press were genetically etched in our collective psyche. It used to be that consequences were attached when a politician was caught in a lie, though, to be fair, one expects some liberties to be taken when elected officials open their mouths. This form of puffery is a time-honored tradition in our culture. But there was an outer limit, a vague, wavering line, that even the most storied prevaricators dared not cross.

President George W. Bush obliterated that line in the run-up to his war on Iraq. But we still cared. A number of public servants from that period, General Powell notable among them, their integrity and credibility hollowed out like an empty gourd, now share the same stature as late night Flowbee skills. President Obama, despite the apoplectic, phlegm-flecked hectoring of his detractors, actually drew back from the brink of absurdity to within recognizable borders of political verisimilitude. But President Trump – and seemingly every pundit in the media – has exorcized the last sliver of truth from public discourse, ushering in an era of fabulosity with maniacal enthusiasm. Nothing is as it was. Lies are everywhere. Lies are the medium of the unjust. They dazzle. They entertain. They cloud the eyes and poison the soul.

All of this leads me to the issue of social justice.

I have heard people scoff at the pursuit of social justice as mere idler's folly. For them life's inherent inequities are marks of fate, the struggle against which seems quixotic and vain. Hear them, but do not follow. Social justice is the concern of those who understand that the phrase "life is not fair" is like a human's vestigial tail, irrelevant, and refuse to "get over it." The truth matters to them. Injustice is not only the cry of those in despair; it is also the summons to relief. UUs recognize that unfairness is not the end of the equation but the beginning. When our windshields become dirty, we wash them. We don't let a few bug guts and dirt prevent us from seeing. When we encounter someone in need, we lend a hand. That's social justice.

Having started life in a hole, some may, of course, just stay there. Social justice is not for them. Some start life on third base. Often social justice is not for them either. But between these extremes, between the overwhelmed and the complacent, life happens. That's where civilizations come from. That's where social compacts are formed and cultures take root. That's where every social advancement in history came from. The Declaration of Independence, one of this nation's most sacred texts, was a demand for justice. The human psyche is impelled by its very nature not to accept things as they are but to fiddle with them to make them better. Sometimes we make whopping mistakes. Correcting them is why they invented Unitarian Universalists.

Welcoming and Membership Team

Introducing our New Name

By Claire Miller, Chair, Welcoming & Membership Team

To be consistent with the new governance structure and terminology at UUCM, the former "Membership Committee" will now be known as the "Welcoming and Membership Team."

Many of the day to day tasks previously done by this group will remain the same. However, some adjustments will evolve over the near future, to help us better reflect our new UUCM Mission Statement. Would you like to be part of this Team? And part of this evolution? There are several areas that could use your time and talents. In all cases, training and support is provided – as you ease into your new role.

1) Sunday Morning Welcoming Team

These team members are charged with creating a warm, inviting and inclusive environment for all before and after Sunday early and/or late services.

Requirements - A friendly nature, and ability to be comfortable talking to someone you don't know. Lots of flexibility in scheduling. This is an ideal starting place for getting involved in the work of UUCM.

2) Social Events: planning, organizing, hosting

Requirements – enjoy working as a team with one or two others to create events. Truly enjoy having fun with others and willing to try new things.

3) Supporting People on the Path to Membership

Requirements – must be a member of UUCM and involved in the life of the community yourself. Moderate level of computer literacy – or willing and able to learn – and your own computer. Good communication, record keeping, and team work with other Welcoming Team members.

4) Supporting Existing Members

Requirements - Be involved in the life of the congregation yourself. Willingness to get to know a wide range of people. Good communication skills, record keeping, and team work with other team members. Minor computer skills.

PATH TO MEMBERSHIP

You may become a Member of UUCM at any time during the year. Here are the steps that will take you along that path. If you are interested, or would like more information, please talk to Rev. Kevin or Claire Miller.

Whether you are a member or not, please know that wherever you are in your spiritual journey, you are welcome at all services, and most social events and activities.

- Attend one of the "Meet the Minister" events between the two services on first Sundays of the month
- Let the Membership committee know that you are interested. (Talk with Claire Miller, chair of Membership, or any of the ushers.)

- Talk with Rev. Kevin about the privileges and responsibilities of membership
- Plan to attend one of the "Small Group Dinners" with Rev. Kevin, someone from Membership Team, and a few other interested new people. These will be casual events – part social, part informational - to help you feel more at home at UUCM. Talk to Claire Miller for details.
- Plan to attend the next "Intro to UU" class on Saturday, November 10th from 9:00 AM until 2:00 PM. This workshop is a time to learn more, to get questions answered, and to experience time with others who are in a similar point in their spiritual journey. It will be a fun day together!

Stewardship Committee

Stewardship's Cottage Meetings

By Keith Johnson and Maryann Currington

Our first cottage meetings have been well received by participants and hosts alike. The Stewardship committee wants invitees to feel comfortable, to freely express their feelings and opinions, and to have a pleasant time. So far, mission accomplished!

Participation in cottage meetings is an opportunity for all of us to examine generosity as a spiritual practice. According to Mark Ewert in The Generosity Path, generosity means freely giving more than is necessary or expected. There are many ways to give within our church, our local community, or country. Giving freely without guilt or coercion is an act of love. Generosity is not an unconscious reflex for most of us, but rather a deliberate practice that can be strengthened and deepened. It may develop out of appreciation, gratitude, or a realization of a need. Generosity is always very personal.

Why be generous? Mark Ewert identifies several life-changing benefits of generosity.

Generosity helps people:

- Connect with others and create community
- Support their identity as a mature or good person
- Find meaning and purpose in their lives
- Build solidarity and kinship across economic divisions
- Align values, beliefs, and loves with resources and actions
- Experience good feelings

Where are you on your generosity path? Let us hear from you at a cottage meeting. Listening to each other and sharing our ideas will be very rewarding. After all, stewardship means caring and attending to something bigger than ourselves. Together we can fulfill our mission by creating a world more compassionate, sustainable and just.

Wine Tasting: Saturday, November 10 Tickets on Sale Now!

By Cynthia Schuetz

One of UUCM's most favorite and fun benefits is coming up, so save the date: Saturday, November 10, beginning at 6:30 PM. Our very own Dave Luce, owner of the Alta Sierra Wine Store will curate several wines for us to taste. This year the wine tasting will be held at UUCM so there will be room for everyone who wants to come.

Dave selects several wines he knows will please even the most discerning wine drinker. Then he offers them and others at a reduced rate just in time for us to stock up for the holidays! There also will be a "small plate" appetizer pot luck and wine bags handmade by indigenous women in Africa.

This event will be fun, yummy and a wonderful way to support UUCM, which will benefit from the sale of tickets ($20/person), wine and wine bags! There will even be a raffle!

UUCM Family Ministry

UUCM's Family Ministry

By Lindsay Dunckel, Co-Chair, Family Ministry

Members of the Family Ministry Team were excited to gather with regional colleagues in Sacramento in late September to talk about what the future of Religious Education can look like. The following day, the keynote speaker from that event, Kim Sweeney, spoke at our two services at UUCM, followed by a discussion over lunch in which dozens of members and friends joined us. The Family Ministry Team is planning ways to build on these conversations: we hope you will join us in imagining how we can best meet the needs of families in our community in the future!

Interested in exploring more on that topic? Kim's paper can be found here: https://www.uua.org/sites/live-new.uua.org/files/the_death_of_sunday_school_and_the_future_of_faith_formation_ksweeney_june2017.pdf

Resources for Exploring Our November Theme: Memory

Our friends at Soul Matters shared these resources that can support parents as you try to live out and engage our theme of Memory with your children. In this sense, our question for this section is: "What does it mean to be a parent of Memory" or "What does it mean to be a family of Memory?"

SANKOFA - STORIES WE NEED TO REMEMBER

Sankofa is a word in the Twi language of Ghana that translates to 'Go back and get it' (san - to return; ko - to go; fa - to fetch, to seek and take) and also refers to the Asante Adinkra symbol represented either with a stylized heart shape or by a bird with its head turned backwards while its feet face forward carrying a precious egg in its mouth. Sankofa is often associated with the proverb, "Se wo were fi na wosankofa a yenkyi," which translates as: "It is not wrong to go back for that which you have forgotten."

"...has more darkness and edge than many average kids' movies and is best suited for tweens and older, rather than the preschool and early-elementary set. It has scary characters and epic battles that can be quite intense and that lead to character injuries, an entire village burning (though the villagers survive), and even deaths. ...Despite the peril, this epic adventure set in an alternative fantasy Japan has strong themes of courage and teamwork. And at heart, it's a mother-and-son love story, as well as the tale of a young artist learning how to be a hero." - Common Sense Media, as suggested by Lynn Lynn, Topeka, KS

Get Ready for November's Exciting Adult RE Opportunities

By Karyn Packard, Adult RE Team Member

October's RE programs have allowed us to reflect on many important topics: aging, mental health, preparing our durable power of attorney for healthcare, our democracy, with the beginning of our study of the book American Immanence, and the first session of Gail Johnson-Vaughan's "From Troubling to Terrific." We are a fortunate congregation to have so many broadening experiences available to us and to our community with such talented presenters. Thanks to Cynthia Schuetz and her RE Team for many jobs, well done. Now we present your November opportunities. Make sure to sign up early; space is limited. Read your descriptions carefully, as some require pre-work. You can make your reservation with the presenter directly or at adultRE@uugrassvalley.org.

BOOK STUDY GROUP WITH REV. KEVIN TARSA TUESDAYS, NOVEMBER 6 & 20, 3-4:30 PM EMERSON ROOM

Rev. Kevin will continue his seven-session book study (over three months) on American Immanence, Democracy for an Uncertain World (referenced by Kevin in his July 1 sermon). The group will meet with the author, Professor Michael S. Hogue, online at the beginning and end of the series.

Contact Rev. Kevin if you are interested:
minister@uugrassvalley.org or 530-274-1661

FROM TROUBLING TO TERRIFIC (SESSIONS 2 TO 4) WEDNESDAYS, NOVEMBER 7, 14 & 28, 3-4:30 PM EMERSON ROOM

Gail Johnson-Vaughan will facilitate the remaining three classes on "From Troubling to Terrific" – open only to those who also attended session one on October 31. Make your reservations right away. There are a few spots left for the full series if you register in time for the first session by contacting Gail at gail@GJV4kids.com. To help you get the most out of the tools she will share, Gail will provide you with pre-work for session one when you contact her to register. Gail says "This four-session series will provide you with tools you can use to eliminate common pitfalls and problems we encounter in crucial conversations. You'll learn your style under stress, how to create safety, steer a crucial conversation out of the danger zone and navigate tricky topics successfully."

Please contact Gail with questions and/or to register for the four-session series. Don't miss this important opportunity.

AGING WORKSHOP: MEMORY

"FIVE SECRETS TO DISCOVER BEFORE YOU DIE"

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10, ALCOTT ROOM, 1-3:00 PM

Cynthia Schuetz, Anita Wald-Tuttle, Marilyn Young, and Elizabeth Fries will facilitate. This is the second of eight seminars, presented on the second Saturday of each month (except December), with topics tied to the Soul Matters theme for each month. This month's theme is "Memory." Join these insightful women in a meaningfully-led discussion. Let Anita (530-277-6195) or Marilyn (916-203-5962) know if you're coming...or just show up! You can also RSVP to the adult RE email address: adultRE@uugrassvalley.org.

SECOND SUNDAY SPIRITUAL PRACTICES SAMPLER SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1:30-2:30 PM HEART FLUENCY WITH BRUCE PARDOE

After soup or salad lunches on the second Sunday of each month we'll invite an hour of shared spiritual practice from 1:30-2:30. Over time we'll sample practices that focus our attention and intention, that call us to be present and undivided. Practices like meditation, drumming, altered-book poetry, dancing, Lectio Divina, body prayers, mandala making, heart fluency, listening to music, labyrinth walking, a prayer bead practice... If you have a spiritual practice that has served you well and that you are willing to share with others, please let Rev. Kevin know.

We'll begin on November 11 with Bruce Pardoe and Heart Fluency, the gentle process he developed for tapping into the wisdom and clarity of one's own heart. It is a guided, introspective practice of mindfulness. (I found it to be a profound and helpful experience when Bruce led me through the practice. - Rev. Kevin)

If you want to know more about Heart Fluency before the session, you may contact Bruce at 530-277-3470.

Adult RE is off to a roaring start! If you have questions, please send them by email to our new adult RE address:

November Soul Matters Reflections

(FOOD FOR THOUGHT AND REFLECTION FROM THE SOUL MATTERS ORGANIZATION)

What does it mean to be a people of... MEMORY?

We start this month with the words of a Soul Matters participant who wants to remain anonymous:

"So I was out for a walk this afternoon and got to thinking a little more about memory, and about the various ways in which we are called back to some previous event or feeling, especially through scent (A certain combination of rotting orange peels and other vegetation takes me right back to the market in Dar es Salaam, and sun on pine needles takes me back to our summer hideouts in the woods.) or music, which is so much easier to remember than prose. I think especially of the song, "In the Still of the Night," which I can sing verbatim, because when I was in junior high, we used to take class field trips from White Plains to NYC and sing it all the way there.

It's all got me thinking about what is it that takes you back, and where it takes you – and, most importantly, how this remembering feels holy? "In the Still of the Night" wasn't holy, exactly, but it represented community, a whole busload of kids singing together, getting beyond the teenage cliques and the need to be popular or cool. There are other memories that take me directly to the holy – dark vaulted rafters, from a church in Philadelphia where I went for a youth conference. Sitting in the Sunday morning service, I had my first real experience of the presence of God in those rafters – as a total agnostic, if not atheist at that point in my life. Or standing on a mountain trail in the sunlight, totally alone, feeling the immensity and the holiness of the moment, the glory of the mountains and the vastness of the sky. All of them are memories that have enormous power in my life still."

Our friend asks, "What is it that takes you back, and where does it take you?" These may be our most important questions this month. "What takes you back?" invites us to see memory as having its own volition. Not a skill we manipulate, but a sacred energy that "wants" something from us, or "hopes" something for us. And "Where does it take you?" Well, that's a big question too. The space of memory is elusive. Mysterious. Seemingly beyond our grasp. Who can really say "where" it is? But here's what we do know: it is in the space of memory that we are somehow held together, and also re-assembled. As we remember, we are re-membered. In that space, memories become these self-animated threads that weave the pieces and parts of us into this more complete thing we call "me" and "you."

It's so humbling, and remarkable!

Which makes it all the more sad that throughout much of our history, we Unitarian Universalists have not been overly nice to memory. We've given it the label,

"tradition," and treated it mostly as something that holds us back. Tradition, we say, cuts us off from a direct experience with the holy and tries to shape us rather than allowing us the freedom to shape ourselves. This attitude has left us, as a faith, wary of the past, depicting it simply as a place where one gets stuck.

But this is changing, and our Soul Matters friend captures this change perfectly. For her the past is not a place that traps us; it's more like soil that clings tightly to our roots in order to nourish and stabilize us. If memory had a voice, it wouldn't sing "remember me." It would call out, "don't forget who you are."

And so, friends, this month, may that be our charge: To allow memory to flow through us in order that it may patch us back together and keep us whole.

Happy re-membering, re-assembling and re-collecting!
